New York, April 29.—Great Britain has just set us an astonishing example of national grit and readiness to make every sacrifice for victory by announcing a budget of over $4,200,000,000, the greatest in the history of the world.

This magnificent sum is to be raised entirely within Great Britain by a population of only 48,000,000 people. British war expenses for the coming year are estimated at $14,000,000,000, of which nearly one-third will be paid out of taxation. The British debt now stands at $39,000,000,000, including $8,000,000,000 loaned to the allies. Our own expenses during the first year of the war have been about $10,000,000,-000, nearly one-half of this representing loans to our allies. Our popula-tion is approximately 110,000,000. This ton is approximately 110,000,000. This coming year our expenses will surely be much larger than the sum just named, and we are raising only about 14 per cent, by taxation, the remaining 86 per cent, being provided for by bonds. If Great Britain, after nearly four years of war with her smaller population and resources can successfully stand such a huge strain, as she certainly is, there is no need to feel any anxiety concerning the ability of the Inited States, which has a much larger population, much kreater resources and has not yet been wearled by pro-longed struggle. America can strike a mighty blow, and it will be only Germany's fault if it comes with crush-

General business is very good, con sidering the abnormal uncertainties and perplexities to be faced. Government regulation is still the great unsettling factor, and there is every reason to expect still further intrusions of this character. The difficult problem of price fixing is one that closely oc-cupies the attention of public officials.

Legislators seem unable to cope with it satisfactorily, and none appreciate the limitations of a price fixing policy better than our efficient and exceedngly capable food administrator Mr.

at $2.50 is still going on, though Mr. Wilson is understood to oppose any increase in the price of wheat beyond the present figure, $2.25; and Canada is content at fixing the price at $2.21. Meanwhile the western farmer fails to see why the price of his wheat should be restrained, when the southern planter is apparently free to push the price of cotton to the limit of profiteering.

is has already been done. Our cotn and woolen manufacturers are also fore or less in the air, in view of the ices of finished goods, and the sup-es of wool. Disinterested Judges, n governmental officials themselves, gnize that prices are best regu-ed automatically by the law of supand demand; yet under the con-ins created by war there is ap-ently no other means of preventing unscrupulous from profiteering and others. If the war continues the both price fixing and curtail-luxuries in a much more vigor-
